“Want to Know”

Analyzing the issues that voters chose when they had the ability to select as many issues as they would like (i.e., what they wanted to know).

Day-to-Day Items Dominate the Topics Voters Want to Hear Candidates' Positions On

The topics that most registered voters would like to know a candidate's stance on are jobs/economy, healthcare, and education. Despite being "hot button" topics, Arizona voters are less concerned about a candidate's opinion on abortion or the environment.

When forced to pick only one option, immigration overtakes education in terms of importance.

Topics That Voters Want to Hear Candidates Speak About

■ "What to Know" ■ "Need to Know"

Q) Candidates for political office have positions on many issues facing Arizona. Of the following issues, which are important for you to know a candidate's position on when you are deciding whom to vote for in an election for state office?

Q) Finally, which is the most important issue for you to know a candidate's position when you are deciding how you will vote? (n=800)

† Note: Some numbers (on the chart or elsewhere) may not appear to be totaled correctly. This is due to rounding. All numbers are correct.

Likely GOP Primary Voters

Voters who are likely to vote in the Republican Primary want to know what candidates think about jobs/economy (80%) and immigration (77%) more than any other topics.

Healthcare is in a distant third place (63%).

Key Takeaways & Actionable Insights

Day-to-day items dominate the topics voters want to hear candidates' positions on. Although certain topics may cross the ideological spectrum in terms of what different types of voters care about (e.g., jobs/economy being in Democratic and Republican primary voters' top areas of interest), diving deeper into these areas reveal different issues that are important to different voters (e.g., Democratic primary voters wanting to hear positions on the minimum wage and GOPers wanting to hear about taxes).

The most popular method that voters use to gather election information is via television – by a large margin. Between 60% and 70% of voters (depending on their characteristics) stay informed through their TV sets, far outpacing the second most common source of election information: official election materials. An effective election information “campaign” will broadcast debates on television, followed up with official information via website or physical mail.

Research Methodology – Arizona Registered Voters

This poll was conducted as an online opt-in panel survey. The survey was completed by OH Predictive Insights from March 21, 2022 – March 29, 2022, from an Arizona registered voters sample. The sample size of this survey was 800 Arizona registered voters, whose demographics were weighted to accurately reflect registered voter population based on gender, region, age, ethnicity, education-level, and party affiliation based on the most recent census data– the exact percentages can be found in the table below. The sample of 800 registered voters yielded a MoE of ± 3%.
